LETTER FROM DENVER, CO.

MISS DUNN WEDS MR. HUNN

I have just learned through the passing of his will, of the death of Ben W. Holt. He was back in the early 80's when I first knew him up to the time of my own Kentucky we were intimate friends and I loved him for his many qualities. He was truly a gentleman and no doubt will be greatly missed by his neighbors and friends.

During my official career as Sheriff of Crittenden county, I always made it convenient to speak frankly with him when it was called for and I recall his honest and frank circumstances of his life. In early life that made me anxious to acquire an education, but the judgment and honesty of parents made him a very fair citizen the community to which he lived.

Since leaving my native land and my boyhood church a great many of my old reliable friends have gone into the Great Beyond and I wonder if you get as the news comes up to the respective places in the places Crittenden County has a national reputation of having produced more prominent and former than any other county in the United States. I at no time grieve on the final scenes to maintain that record.

Wishing you the best of the season and with kind regards and wishes for The Crittenden Press. Yours truly JNO. T. FRANK

HE DIDN'T BULL

Some time ago Mr. John Sutton was a visitor for whom no information of where he resided or what he did was known. Mr. Mark Brown, of Marion, found him at the home of Mr. Mark Brown, of Marion.

At that time The Press printed story of the man from which information could be obtained.

Last Tuesday Mr. Sutton was to see us and through information given to the press he was to be seen at the office and that he did not come. On the way he was whisked away.

The Press made no further inquiry and concluded the person staying in the office was unknown—but when the last news we are more than glad to print a full story.

WILLOUGHBY H. GUESS

A few weeks ago there was given in the Press a story of the visit of Mr. Willoughby H. Guess to this office. At that time Mr. Guess, who is 90 odd years old, could not say just how many grandchildren he had, having lost count. Through the kindness of his son, Silas Guess, we have obtained this information.

Mr. Guess, who is perhaps the oldest man in Crittenden county, has been married three times, the father of 21 children, 18 of whom are living and good citizens of the county. He also has 5 grandchildren, 11 great grandchildren and one great great grandchild, divided among his 13 sons and daughter as follows: T. C. Guess, 10 children and 20 grandchildren; T. H. Guess, 6 children and 9 grandchildren; J. A. Guess, four children and eight grandchildren; Mrs. H. A. Ordway, 11 grandchildren; Mrs. J. C. Walker, the children 18 grandchildren and one great grandchild, Mrs. Mary Walker, six children; Silas Guess, eight children and three grandchildren; J. H. Guess, one child; Mr. W. Goss, two children; Mr. T. Guess, one child; Hurley Guess, two children.

Pete Whitaker, who was elected Sheriff of Letcher county, where they were made their home, and his wife, were held in the county jail a long time. The guess was released at 10:30. Now he has the right to be a real son, can any other fanatic beat it?

PEASLEY BOAT DISAPPEARS

A gasoline boat belonging to Sylvester Sturgeon and used as a ferry boat and to make twice daily trips of the government light along the shore, disappeared from the landing at Weston Friday night of last week. It is supposed that the boat was stolen. A few days later Mr. Sturgeon received a telephone message from Carrollton stating that his boat was in the mouth of a creek near that place. The wind being very high and the river extremely rough in that place, it is surmised that the thief or thieves deserted the boat leaving it to float down the river.

RESIDENCE REURNED

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Bucher, located on Bucher Avenue, was burned the night of Monday evening at 10 o'clock, the family barely escaping with their lives. Mrs. Bucher, in escaping from the burning house, was severely, perhaps fatally, burned by the flames, a condition which has since been disclosed.

The Bucher family were at home and asleep when the fire broke out, which it is supposed, was caused by a defective gas line. Mr. Bucher, a neighbor, hearing the noise from his home ran over to the Yancey residence and gave the alarm. The fire at that time was well under way and the roof fell.

Mr. Bucher, awake now and awaking his wife, grabbed a hold of each arm and tried to pull her to safety. By this time the flames were leaping thru the room. Tom King, the stepson, was sleeping in an adjoining room. Mrs. Bucher, springing from the bed, ran to the door leading to the room where the stepson was sleeping to awaken him. As she opened the door the flames rushed through the opening, severely burning her face, arms, shoulders and other parts of her body. In order to escape the stepson had to dash through the flames, with his clothing partially torn.

In spite of the terrible burns the Bucher family saved their lives, though not easily.

The estimated value of the home with its furniture and household goods is about $2,000.

Call for details.

CONVICT BUILT ROADS

The letter of former Captain Walter Q. Vrooman of the Frankfort Penitentiary to Governor H. Green Garrett of the state Highway Department has called the attention of the state in a dignified and commanding way, to the evils of trying to build roads with convicts. In Vrooman's protest he met with poor and uneven approval of the press of the State. He Vrooman argued in favor of keeping prisoners laboring without pay, they are not fit for public or private work. They should be kept there for the public protection, as soldiers for their own protection. The effect of this was much with general when it was presented before. The State of Frankfort should build the prisons and end the system. He does not require that convicts be treated like slaves, but like persons.

Illinois Central Reviews Transportation Conditions of 1920

The history of the Illinois Central has emerged from a year of unprecedented difficulties. Within transportation places unusual to the distributor, and areas of other roads in regard to what railroads have been affected, and in whom losses, looking outside its territory may well fall.

Internal troubles were the greatest in history. Failure of cotton in the coal mines of November and December 1920, at the beginning of 1920 the country was faced with one of the normal seasons. Other commodities in great quantities went up in cost. A flood of rain fell turned upon the railways.

The 6000 cars suffered from the war. New equipment had not been purchased or sufficient equipment had not been adequately maintained. Care had been neglected throughout the country. The building of yards, sidings and new tracks had been discontinued. Adequate rates had not been secured. Wage increases and taxes were imposed to meet war. A series of strikes tying up terminals brought increases, started in April and made its lingering effects felt throughout the early summer.

During the great droughts of transportation with many considerations being the railroads anticipated a loss that would affect traffic in case of a coal strike. An avoided loss of traffic was saved. A greater than ever record of efficiency was built up week by week and month by month, exceeding all previous records of railway history. The price of the war surcharge was phased out in September. Late in November a coal miners actually excused. The supply of transportation was again to exceed the demand for the first time in four years.

With productivity increasing toward 1921 an extremely bad season again followed. If the predicted weather carried over it will be a heavy strain upon the railroads. We believe the roads will be able to gather a larger tonnage than they did during the record-breaking 1920 year, and conditions are to continue and no equipment will be in further condition. Railway markets are developing the largest part of locally and nationally produced sugar, a new form of public service. More efficient rates have been granted. The public is holding a more balanced interest in various affairs. Economic development have been marked.

It is well however, for those who will make heavy demands upon traffic during the year to anticipate those demands as early as possible, now day the railroads are in a position to handle all traffic offered them which can be transported now in anticipation of later demands should be reported in order to distribute the traffic burden more evenly.

We of the Illinois Central System are proud to have shared in the 1920 record of the railroads of the country. Our best efforts will now be put forth in helping to make the record of the railroads for 1921 even more creditable than was the record of 1920.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

The Lookout

"I've got the position! Oh! the more dear good fortune of it all!"

Alie Weston burst in upon her father astir with excitement and delight. She had hurried all the way from the life saving station down at Cape Gray, two miles distant, and had run from the old lighthouse clear to the little cottage where John Weston sat reading a book.

"Cashed for you, Bright Eyes," he shouted, bestowing a glad glance upon her. "Let us hear all about it."

"You know, we heard how, during the winter or spring, the cape lifesaving crew have planned to put a lookout signal station at the old lighthouse so as to cover pleasure boats and bathers in this direction. The chief of the crew was awfully good to me. He inquired all about what I would have to do and to make the telephone and the engine will be here for us, and I am to begin my duties the payin' time of it." Many dollars a month!

Alie's eyes sparkled and those of her father filled with grateful tears. For over five years she had gone hand in hand with those worthy and deserving men. Mr. Weston was too old to take part in the boat.

"We are to keep your boat ready for you. All we want is that they will pay you ten dollars month for what we can. It may have. They expect us to find some one to be within call of our station ready to start out if an accident occurs on this side of the we must be ready to start right out to the rescue."

The next morning Alie, fairly bucking along, appeared at the station. The tall board of the position and boat house directed to Mr. Weston by a neighbor. At a glance Alie discovered that the apartment was not in shape. It simply stated that it had been with a certain reserve to the man who owned a yacht once. It was a small water craft and would be hard to secure the position offered. The life saving service chief appeared an hour or two later to look over the place. He required the tower that was to be the daily home of Alie and the lighthouse North, which were at once arranged for.

Many hours later Alie realized the tower to be part of my duty every morning. I turned North and the path led through the door to the office. "I've arranged for you. As to the higher could any thing be better?" and he indicated a bench looking across window openings where the sea breeze came in fresh and bracing.

As Alie learned that North had been left quite a fortune, but had been defrauded out of it by someone. He had come down to the station to sell a yacht for a very wealthy gentleman, but the latter had been unable to get along here on the part of the man for the rest of the year.

He was sitting with his hands clasped in front of him, looking up to the lookout. He hurried to the boat. Holding the mast vigorously North dashed forward, zig-zagging in the direction of the caper boat. Alie hurried to the entrance, dashed his purse. It was entirely across the track of a tall craft half a mile away. As he reached it Alie uttered a sharp scream. A yell of smoke and then the first note of a pistol report told her of a sudden disaster. The smoke was still by side. She saw North who had fallen across shot his gun at the man who had fired at her and sprung to the boat. The other boat was away. The smaller boat was apparently helpless drifting.

A moment later she noted the movement of the sea that she had a few minutes she was in a tight listing sail. She was aghast. She was fairly exhausted as she staggered into the sheltering boat. One of its occupants was dead. She got the other, called her father and within an hour North was able to tell his story.

"I heard in the town of a great jewel robbery at the hotel," he explained, "and thought that suspicious boat. It contained the stolen plunder."

The thief was taken in charge by officers and set free. There came back a phone message. "There is one thousand dollars reward waiting here for somebody."

Of course the "somebody" was General North and his first investment after a month's nursing by the sole busines Alie was an engagement ring.
